

... the most interesting plot, which is rather a simple one, arises out of a version of the young people of a certain age to enter into the married state. "Alexis," is betrothed to "Aline," endeavours to get this unnatural state of affairs. He only espouses the cause of matrimony, and aims, "Oh that the world would break down artificial barriers of rank, wealth, education, beauty, habits, taste, and temper, and re-ise the glorious principle that in marriage is to be found the panacea for every ill." He announces that he has lectured before us audiences, and been received with enthusiasm, and there is much humour in his remark he has addressed navies on the advantages would accrue to them if they married of rank "and not a navy discontent." How to expedite the good cause the services of a sorcerer are required. This expert in the art of magic produces a liquid known as "Love-at-sight Philtre," which is placed in a tea and when the villagers innocently partake a cup that cheers, they relapse into a state of rapture, but on awakening love rules every one. Young and hitherto bashful maidens meet strangely fascinated by old age, they their former lovers, and the most amusing complications ensue. However, in the end the sorcerer is doomed to die by the general verdict of the villagers, and all thereupon quit their present partners and rejoin their old ones. A very joyful chorus immediately concludes the opera. The casts was as follows:—

 Gill's portrayal of "Sir Marmaduke" was acted in a most dignified and realistic manner, which was free from anything like stag-ger. The very courtly ceremony, during which a and y Sangazure" was greatly admired, and id rounds of applause. A duet they here sing was very capably acted. On the whole Mr Gill may congratulate himself on his very clever interpretation of the role. Mr Whately Ellis as "Alexis" (in a soldier uniform) had a very important part, and a very professional performance, but he unfortunately suffered from a cold, and was not in his best voice. In the charming ballad, "I love love—I love it only," he sang with great and much power, and was encored, and the due with "Sir Marmaduke" was excellently acted. With "Aline" he also did his part successfully, particularly in the scene of the affable "Mr Wells" first appears. frequently Mr Ellis was again encored for his ring of the ballad, "It is not love." We speak too highly of Miss Gaffney's importation of "Lady Sangazure." It was simply original for an amateur, and leaves no doubt of the possessor very high dramatic conceptions, while her rich and very pleasing voice was ably suited to the music allotted to the character. Her costume, which was designed by the artist Irwin and made by Messrs Wm Todd of the city, was a very handsome bodice and train of rose satin, striped with purple velvet, and with pale maize satin, over a petticoat of rose and gold brocade, and trimmed with black lace. Her acting throughout was most faithful and realistic. She sang in faultless style the duet with "Sir Marmaduke," which has already referred to, and at the conclusion she was recipient of a handsome bouquet, thrown by one of the boxes. In the second act she was applauded for her rendering of "In the n Days"—a beautiful song, which does not belong to the opera; and in the recitative and with "Mr Wells" she exhibited great comedy.
 Miss Birdie McCarthy as "Aline" looked attractive in a modern bridal costume, she wore in the first act, and in the second a yellow brocade and pink satin dress, edged with honiton lace. She acted very faithfully, and sang with her usual taste, her trained voice being heard to great advantage in the duets with "Alexis."

ADJOURNMENT OF PETTY SESSIONS.

Miltown Malbay, Friday.
 The usual petty sessions court was opened here to-day, Mr A M Harper, E M, being the only magistrate present. On taking his seat, he said—

The result of these matches would go to indicate that the Irish representatives will have a good chance of carrying victory all round in the International contests, England having already beaten Wales by the substantial score of four goals and a try to nil. Judging by to-day's result Ireland should have no difficulty in defeating Scotland when they meet in Dublin on the 24th. The contest between Wales and Ireland will be played in Belfast.

BECTIVE RANGERS V. GARRYOWEN.
 (SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).
 Dublin, Saturday Evening.

The Bective Rangers met the famous Garryowen Limerick team in Dublin this afternoon before a large crowd of spectators. The Bective men won the toss. Play settled down in the vicinity of the Limerickmen's goal, and Jerry Magee managed to get across the line. Cameron had a good shot at goal, and succeeded in gaining this point. No further score was made at half time. In the second half Garryowen played very pluckily, and pressed the home team very hard, but eventually they were obliged to adopt defensive tactics. Magee shortly after got across the line, which was not improved upon. O'Connor made a splendid run, but was collared by Grant in fine style, and neither side made any headway till call of time. Bective won by one goal and one try to nil.

L.P.Y.M.A V. HAND MANCHESTER REGIMENT.

The return match between the above teams was played this evening on the Farranshane Grounds, and resulted in a win for the L.P.Y.M.A. by a try (T Gale) to nil, after an exciting game, the home team just scoring before "time." The following played a very good game for the Regiment—Forster, Evans, McCauley, and Mulcaster, and Ormston, Stokes, Moore (backs), Scales, Brown, and Angley (forwards), played in their usual good form for the Association.

COUNTY LIMERICK HOUNDS

The place of meeting of this pack on Thursday last, 1st February, was Castle Roberts Bridge, where a large field was in attendance. The covers round Adare Manor, the seat of that world-known sportsman, the Earl of Dunraven, were first appealed to, and having been closed to hounds for the first four months of the hunting season were reported to be swarming with foxes. Expectation ran high in consequence, but cover after cover failed to produce a fox, and disappointment was universal when the demesne was drawn blank. Nor did better luck attend hounds when Sir D V Roche's covers at Carras were next visited, as the result was similar to that at Adare. So ended a blank day (the first of the season)—in the heart of the County Limerick, too!—so different to the sport of Monday, 20th January, and to that of yesterday, February 2nd, when Terroe was the fixture. Hounds were not half a minute in cover at Terroe when they spoke to a fox, and carried him nicely out of the demesne on the western side, running at a fair pace close up to Elm Park, where he beat right handed and ran hounds out of scent near Carrigogunnell Castle. Elm Park held a brace who were loath to quit, and as scent was had in cover they were left. A fox from Fahagorse was run hard to the back of Fahagouse, back through the gorse, and killed a field or two from the cover. Then a long trot to Croon gorse which, as usual, held a good one. Breaking at the eastern end he crossed the Liskennett road, south of the Rectory, and the hounds ran without checking to within a field of Mr Hartigan's gorse at Durragh. Then at a reduced speed over a fine line of country till Kilmore was almost reached. Bending here to the right the line lay over the hills towards Liskennett gorse, before entering which hounds were stopped, the masters not wishing to disturb the cover. This was a very good run, and lasted in all about one hour from the find.

Amongst those out we noticed—Mr J V Phelps, M F H, Mr A E Bannatyne, M F H; Mr J F Bannatyne, Mr James O'Grady Delmege, Dr
